
ASPIRE SIMPLIFIES PREMIUM FINANCING THROUGH PPP PARTNERSHIP

Manalapan, New Jersey, March 29, 2005: Maple Technologies is pleased to announce its strategic business partnership with Premium Payment Plan [PPP], Hudson New York. PPP currently supports insurance industry clients through flexible and creative financing and specialty niche premium financing programs customized to meet "everyone's" needs. Maple Technologies is a custom software developer designing ASP-based information systems and applications for property and casualty insurance carriers and managing general agents.

Through the strategic business partnership with Maple Technologies, PPP services will be integrated into Maple's proprietary Aspire Information System, effortlessly blending premium finance transactional processing. This integration will offer additional convenience to Aspire end users, allowing a single process solution.

Eric C. Sepci, Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of PPP, said, "Simply put, Maple Technologies is at the leading edge of information technology development for any insurance industry related company looking for an advantage. By combining years of Insurance expertise with a technology team that is second to none, Maple Technologies truly has the ability to differentiate a product or business. After one demonstration, I was thoroughly impressed with Nicholas, his team and the products and solutions they have developed. I would, (and have), recommend them to anybody looking for a top notch technology company to partner with them."

Nicholas H. Teetelli, CEO of Maple Technologies said, "A key financial component of day to day insurance operations involves some aspect of premium financing. Our new strategic business partnership with Premium Payment Plan brings yet another measure of convenient processing to our Aspire clients, adding value and offering clients a more efficient business solution to process their financial transactional obligations."
